BRING THEM BACK.

In the grimy tenement-house section music once lent its refining charm, at least trausiently. The street-band, with its glittering bras-, it showy uniforms, notwithstanding its eleemosynary cap, was a grateful, inspiring feature. The serenaders would anchor themselves on a corner, blow, and, presto! new life seemed to prickle through the street. The horses dragged their leads more contentedly, the men smoked more enjoyingly, and the women robbed their " wash" up and down the washboards, helped by the rhythmic strains.

The children would clasp each other's waists and dance like motes in the sunshine. little cases of humanity filled with the oil of gladness. And now the street-bands are gone, and gone is the gladness that they

PUNISHMENT SHOULD BE SPEEDY.

Some she-devil lured a dozen poor young girls from their homes in Toronto by promising to them good situations in the West. She inveigled them to a lumber camp, where they were outraged and then kept prisoners and subjected to inhuman treatment.

The sight of innocent young girls, poor and unfriended, wrecked for life by the brutal just of men through the machinations of this creature of hell in the shape of woman, is enough to raise a ferment of indignation in any community that calls itself civilized. Hanging is too mild a punishment for such fiendish evil as this.

Human feeling ought to be too strong to suffer it to go unredressed.

Give the Man a Little Variety.

Variety is the spice of life, and man needs lenty of spice. Let a wife have ever so cheerful a home for her husband, and if every evenng is the same monotonous round, the average nan will seek excitement elewhere.

Minister to his creature comforts, but don't top them. A man is not wholly an animal, but top them. A man is not wholly an animal, but top them. Hang to His Cont-Talls. In the Editor: Let the wife insist on accompanying him everywhere he goes. She will require to be determined to carry this plan out, but perseverance on her part will bring him to time. VERITAS.

Mother-in-Law as a Last Resort.

First-Stay at home yourself. Make yourself think your own husband is nearer perfection than any other man living, then act accord-When he comes home have everything eady for his comfort, meet him with a dozen kisses instead of one—one is so quick over with it leaves no impression. Be kind, encerful, encouraging, accommedating, thoughtful, willing, pradeut and tidy, all for his sake.

If this won't do refer him to his mother-in-law.

Mrs. A. S. McC.

Never Let Him Feel Henpecked.

Court a husband harder than a lover. Show an interest in things that interest him most. Make him feel at home in his own house. And never, by word, look or action, make him feel himself a henpecked husband.

Love hard, pray hard, and the cricket will sing merrily upon your hearth from whose cheerful side a husband will never want to linger long.

LITTLE DORBIT.

The Secret in One Word-Tact. To the Edilor : He he rich man or poor man, strong man or weak; be his home palace or cottage, the best general and most potent method of keeping him home evenings is that of tact. This the power behind the throne that sways the world: 'tis pro-portionately strong in influencing the home life of men, when administered by wife, mother or sister. X. Y. Z., Newark, N. J.

Make him jealous and -Mrs. L. M. N. Boo.

Cater to His Love and His Appetite. Aiways love him as you did when first married. Always have his dinner ready when he comes in and have what you know he likes best. Never annoy him about household affairs which do not concern him.

I have done this for more than twenty-three years and he has never gone out without me.

S. S.

Go to the Root of the Matter.

Had I a husband who deserted me evenings I should endeavor to ascertain first, the cause then the cure. If it was through any fault of mine I would on remedy that; if I found it was some attracsoon remedy that; if I found it was some attraction not to be found in his own home I should culeavor to know what it consisted of and provide that home, if possible, or at least as good a substitute as could be had.

Add to this the utmest care for his comfort and well-being, my first and last thought, and my heart's less love, then I do not think I would have any cause for complaint.

SPINSTER.

She World Drug Him.

Unless a man loves his wife it will be impossisible to keep him home evenings. The most delicate attentions will lose their charm and bedeficate attentions will toe their charm and become monotonous without a little varietien.

On the other hand, why should a woman be so sellish as to require the constant pressure of her husband? Give him a night or two 'off out of the seven. A man requires some recreation after a hard days work, but if he is mean enough to want more the best remedy would be a barniers sleaving potion skyly administered in his tea or coffice.

J. W.

Two Sides to the Story,

If a husband loves his wife he will spendall the time he can with his fanily. Here is the the time he can with his fan.iiy. Here is the recipe in a nutshell. If you keep your husband's love ron will keep him home evenings. If you expect to be loved, alway he lovable.

1. S.—I have and nothing about a manidatlea as a husband, for it is at the wife we are trying to keep name. But I think there should be limits to her endurance. I have no patience with a woman who will grown at the feet of the man she loves. Any man worthy of the name will think more of a wife if she maintains her own dignity.

"MIGNON" IN HARLEM.

Too much emphasis cannot be laid upon the name of Miss Emma Juch in the English Opera Company, now singing at Mr. Hammerstein's Harlem Opera-House. Miss Juch is the power that will draw; there is not another member of the organization that rises above medi-ocrity. Last night "Mignon" was presented, and Ambroise Thomas's delightful sented, and Ambroise Thomas's delightful opera attracted a large gathering to the hand-ome theatre. In fact, the house was filled by an audience of an extremely discriminating nature, I say discriminating, because, as events turned out, the ladies and gentlemen knew when to manifest approval and when to show condemnation. I like to see an intelligent, discorning audience. It does a great deal of good to the stage people, too.

Too much praise cannot be given to the Mignon of Miss Juch. It was worthy to rank with the very best Mignons we have beard. It Frank Dolan is the champion cross-country runner the mirror were deliciously given Miss Marie Deces, who made her first appearance here, sang Filiua, and was unfitted to the role. She has a thip, loose sort of a voice, with but little accuracy. Her roulades were blurred and indistinct and her "vocal leaps" mi-sed their mark in an astonishing manner. The beautiful and brilliant polacea inspired toothache and nothing else. To people who are musically sensitive it was a cruelty. Of course, Miss Pecca suffered from nervousness, but whatever she may be in less exacting roles, I do not think she can ever wisely attempt Filina. Mr. Hedmondt, the tenor, is a very goodlooking young man-a fact of which he is certainly aware, and at which he evidently rejoices. His voice is mild and pleasant-nothing above the average tenor. Miss Lizzie Macmichol, a very pretty little lady, was nervous, and her rendering of the gavotte was marred. In Miss Macmichol's case, however, as soon as the nervousness has been overcome, better results will be undoubtedly obtained. But, after all, with the predominant Juch, there is enough in this company to satisfy opera-lovers. To hear her sing one song is worth the price of admission. It is therefore easy to calculate the value of her perpetual ALAN DALE.

And now come the Pepublicans with charges that Colice Justices Patterson and Smith were very lukewarm on Tuesday, each hoving for reappointment at the hands of Mayor Grapt next Monday. "I am still boss," Police Justice Power whispers to simself, but he must acknowledge that his bossship is confined within the walls of the Court of Genera Fessions, to be presided over by Judge Fitzgerald. Ex-Assemblyman Edward P. Hagan, who stepped aside to allow Charles A. Stadler's return to the Senate from the Ninth District, hopes to write his name Edward Folice Justice Hagan next week. "I would like to got out of politics and attend to my law practice," says John E. Brodsky, "but I won ; so long as the silk-stocking Republicans are pounding Johnny O'Brien. That's the way we all feel in the lighth District."

Judge Cildersleeve blames the District-Attorney's office for his defeat. More Important than the Election. All diseases affectively treated, at triffing cost, at NELS S CURATIVE IS HITUTE, SI East Tenth, **
